CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic for the week, beginning July 9.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic—A good vacation—Mark vi, 7, 12, 13, 6-12.

Man absolutely requires rest.

A poor economist who makes no provision for a vacation—a season of quiet rest and recuperation. But the usefulness of a vacation depends entirely upon its character. It may be a blessing, or it may be a curse; it may stimulate us for an increased interest in the duties of life, or it may rob us of much of the interest that we previously possessed. How to make our vacation a good vacation is a very important question.

The incident in the topical reference is very suggestive.

The 19 have returned from an arduous and successful year, and Christ takes them apart for rest, fellowship and communion. It may well be called a good vacation.

1. The apostles deserved their vacation.

They had labored and were weary. They had preached the gospel, cast out devils, healed the sick. They were weary because of their toils. It was impossible to rest where they were, as "the world was their workshop." No vacation can be a good one unless it is deserved—unless we feel that because of constant, earnest effort we have a right to a rest and need it.

2. The apostles sought a suitable place for a vacation.

It was a "desert place apart," a quiet, uninhabited place. Many a vacation is spoiled, so far as proper results are concerned, because the places visited are the very ones where "many are counting and going." Recreation is impossible in a crowded seaside resort. It means weariness and not rest, nervous depression and not recuperation.

3. The apostles had Christ with them on their vacation.

The object was quiet communion with Him and fellowship with one another. Christ took them upon their search for rest. Does Christ go with us on our vacations? Do we take Him or do we leave Him behind? Alas, too many Christians leave Christ at home when they go to the seashore, the mountains or to the lakes. You would not know from their "dilly walk and conversation" they know Christ. No vacation can be a good one unless we have Christ with us. If we leave Christ behind, it must be harmful and not helpful, injurious and not inspiring. Whatever else we do, let us take Christ on our vacations.

4. The object of the apostles' vacation was a good one.

They went apart to rest awhile, that they might be the better prepared to perform the duties of the future. This is the only worthy object of a vacation—that we may be better fitted and prepared for the duties of life upon our return.

Bible Readings—Gen. xlix. 14, 15; Ex. xx. 8-11; xxxiii. 12-14; Ps. xxxvii. 7-10; Job. xiv. 10; Isa. xlvii. 4; Jer. vi. 10; Math. xii. 28-30; xli. 48; John. iv. 1-10.

God's Law.

Sin is never a matter of public opinion. It takes neither shape nor color from its surroundings. It is always a transgressor of God's law, else not sin at all. God's law may or may not be in harmony with ours. We build our little social barriers and feel they bound the kingdom. So did the elders in olden times, and by this law they would try the Christ. Our general assembly is prone to give what it calls deliverances on matters concerning which the Bible knows nothing. They are at best mere opinions, which have naught to do with mankind. God's law was here before we were. It requires no action of congress or assembly to determine what it is. Envy, jealousy, hate, covetousness, malice, evil speaking—these are sin. They are not bad manners, bad breeding, offensive conduct, but sin, plain, unvarnished sin. They strike at God. As such they ought to be understood and treated. There is no lesson in culture equal to a penitent hour. It uproots selfishness from the heart and makes one mindful of another.—Presbyterian Journal.

The Principal Idea.

The principal idea in life molds all others to conformity with it. Jesus' principal idea was money getting, and a led up to thieving and betrayal of his Lord. The principal idea of the chief priests was the retention of their power. To do that they must murder any one who seemed more popular than they; hence the importance of having the principal idea of life right and high. What is yours?—The Sunday School Times.

In the Wrong Place.

It is sometimes seeking to see the kind of men who succeed in winning popular applause. It is sometimes desiring to note the men who fail; but, after all, in the long run, the unworthy succeed only with the unworthy, and the fitting fail to survive only when they are in the wrong place.—Christian Register.

Like the Tails of Comets.

Some books I read and some sermons ing service at 10:30 a.m.; evening service 7:30 p.m.; Sunday school at 9 a.m.; Christian Endeavor 6:30 p.m. Luther League.

The Luther League of Trinity Lutheran church will meet in the Sunday school rooms Sunday evening at 6:14. Leader, Albert Hovell, way. Topic, "Enduring Treasures." All are welcome.
